Greetings Sisters and Brothers:

Addressing the safety and health concerns of our membership in our workplaces is vital to the success of the USW and District 9. The USW Health, Safety and Environment, through the Union's Tony Mazzocchi Center, provides a variety of health and safety training to our membership. Many times the training can be provided to a local union (or employer) at no charge or a very competitive cost. Last year the Tony Mazzocchi Center provided training to about 20,000 workers (and managers). The USW also hosts an International Health, Safety and Environment Conference every 18-months where, in March, 2018, the USW HSE Conference included 1500 participants. However, we recognize that our training is not reaching all of our Local Unions or reaching as many members as we would like. To help with this, USW District 9 is proud to host a series of regional, one-day health and safety training sessions. The training sessions will be led by trainers within the District, from USW District 9 Local Unions. The agenda and schedule is below.
